Procedure for identifying givers of donations

26/06/2024

Due to privacy regulations, it might be difficult to obtain a complete list of donors to the Sudanese Community Association (SAC). However, here are some procedures you can follow to identify potential givers:

Public Sources:

- SAC Website and Annual Report: SAC might publish information about their donors on their website or annual report. Check if they have a "donors" section or a list of sponsors.
- News Articles: If SAC has received significant donations, there might be press releases or news articles mentioning the donors. You can search online for news articles mentioning SAC.
- Social media: SAC might thank their donors on social media platforms. You can check their social media pages for posts expressing gratitude to their supporters.

Reach out to SAC:

- Contact SAC directly: You can contact SAC and inquire about their donor recognition policy. They might be willing to share some information about the categories of their donors without revealing individual identities.
- Attend fundraising events: If SCA organizes fundraising events, attending them can be a good way to network with potential donors and learn more about their commitment to the cause.

Look for alternative sources of funding:

- Government Grants: SAC might receive grants from government agencies. You can search for government grant databases to see if SAC has been awarded any grants.
- Private Foundations: Some private foundations might support organizations like SCA. You can search online directories of foundations to identify potential funders.
